The Department of Public Health at California State University, Fullerton (CSUF), invites applications for a full-time tenure-track Assistant/Associate Professor faculty position in Health Disparities/Health Equity. The Department (with over 1,500 undergraduate and 80 graduate majors) offers a B.S. in Public Health (with focus areas in health promotion and disease prevention, environmental and occupational health and safety, and global health), and a Master of Public Health (with focus areas in health promotion/disease prevention, environmental and occupational health, and gerontological health). The Department offers multiple opportunities for collaboration in its research centers, including the Center for the Promotion of Healthy Lifestyles and Obesity Prevention, Center for Cancer Disparities Research, Fibromyalgia and Chronic Pain Center, and Health Promotion Research Institute. Visit the Department of Public Health (http://hhd.fullerton.edu/hesc) and University (http://www.fullerton.edu) websites for additional information about our programs, offerings and faculty.

Position

The primary professional responsibilities of this instructional faculty member are: teaching undergraduate and graduate public health courses in promoting health in diverse populations and health disparities/health equity and/or global health; research, scholarly, and/or creative activities; service to the department, college, university, and public health profession. These responsibilities generally include: advising students, participation in campus and system-wide committees, maintaining office hours, working collaboratively and productively with colleagues, and participation in traditional academic functions. Positive tenure and promotion decisions require excellent teaching, on-going commitment to research, refereed publications, and substantial service to the department, college, university and the profession.

The Department of Public Health is committed and strives to further CSUF’s identity as an institution that welcomes and embraces diversity. We strongly encourage applications from candidates who can demonstrate through their teaching, research, and/or service that they can contribute to the diversity and excellence of our community.

Required Qualifications

The appointee must have:

- An earned doctorate in public health or related field by time of appointment.
- Commitment to providing high-quality undergraduate and graduate education and demonstrated ability to teach courses related to health disparities/health equity to students from diverse backgrounds, including first-generation college students.
- Focused ongoing scholarly and creative activity in health promotion, disease prevention and/or intervention research with the goal of addressing or ameliorating health disparities and/or improving health of women, racial/ethnic minorities, persons with lower socioeconomic status, immigrant populations, or sexual minorities. Persons conducting research on health justice or global health equity with implications to U.S. populations are encouraged to apply.
- Demonstrated record of publications and presentations and potential for obtaining external grants and funding.
- The ability to create and maintain research ties with diverse communities.
- Potential for leadership activities in professional associations and the surrounding community.
- The ability to work collegially in a multicultural environment with a culturally diverse faculty, staff, students, and community.
The ability to actively contribute through service to both the university and the highly diverse surrounding community.

Preferred Qualifications
The department is particularly interested in candidates with expertise in promoting health in diverse populations, health disparities/health equity, and/or global health. Professional certified health education specialist (CHES) is desired. Individuals interested and experienced in advancing the University’s strategic diversity and high impact practice goals are strongly encouraged to apply.

A background check (including a criminal record check) must be completed satisfactorily before any candidate can be offered a position with the CSU. Failure to satisfactorily complete the background check may affect application status of applicants or continued employment of current CSU employees who apply for the position.

Rank & Salary
This is a tenure-track position at the rank of Assistant or Associate Professor. Salary is competitive and commensurate to rank, experience, and qualifications. Periodic salary adjustments are enacted by the state legislature. Moving expenses, start-up funds, and a reduced teaching load may be available. Faculty may apply for intramural grants to support research and scholarly activities and have opportunities to teach in the summer session for additional salary. An excellent, comprehensive benefits package is available which includes health/vision/dental plans, spouse, domestic partner and/or dependent fee-waiver; access to campus child-care; and a defined-benefit retirement through the state system along with optional tax sheltering opportunities. Reasonable accommodations will be provided for qualified applicants with disabilities who self-disclose.
